Key West was once the largest city in Florida, the wealthiest city per capita in the U.S., and the largest producer of cigars and natural sponges in the country. Key West has always been an alluring favorite to visitors like John James Audubon, Ernest Hemingway, Harry Truman, Tennessee Williams, Robert Frost and...You! We're glad you're here and we're excited to show you our beautiful island.

Flagler's railroad arrived in Key West on January 22, 1912 and the Island City was changed forever. The Conch Tour Train is proud to be the legacy of Henry Flagler's engineering miracle. Join us on a "Train" ride through time. We'll take you back to the days before civilization when fierce Indians left their enemy's bones to bleach in a tropical wilderness naming the island Cayo Hueso or Bone Key. Together, we'll explore a lush tropical island and discover the charm and grace of one of America's most unique architectural treasures.

We'll get to know characters like Audubon, Hemingway and Truman and, like them, become captivated by the magic that is Key West. From bold Spanish explorers and brave "Wreckers" to the great cigar barons and sponge magnates ... we'll transport you from the golden age of settlement through the exciting railroad days, the depression and WWII. There's much to see and learn - See the Best First on the World Famous Conch Tour Train.

Hemingway lived in Key West during his most productive years. We'll show you the home where he worked with a special introduction to the descendants of his cats. We'll also take you to where he played at Sloppy Joe's on Duval Street.

The sea and the story of Key West are entwined like roots of our native mangroves. As the Southernmost city in the continental United States, Key West is strategically located in the Florida Straits. For centuries, treasure ships and merchant vessels alike fell victim to treacherous reefs and hurricanes. Even more deadly were the pirates who stalked their prey with abandon until the arrival of the U.S. Navy in 1823.

Today our waters still yield fabulous riches to those brave enough to seek them. The warm Gulf Stream has blessed these islands with bountiful harvests of fish, "pink gold", sponges and lobster. Come along with us as we get to know world famous treasure salvor Mel Fisher, the men of our fishing fleet, and the Navy personnel garrisoned in one of America's oldest military establishments.

See the best of Key West on the tour that's been entertaining visitors to the Island City since 1958. The Conch Tour Train is one of Florida's most popular attractions, and for good reason. Our expert "engineers" and friendly staff have delighted over ten million guests with the legends and lore of this charming tropical paradise. All Aboard and welcome to 400 years of history, family fun and excitement.
